About Catrina & Neuroteachers

Catrina Lowri is neurodivergent, having the dual diagnosis of dyslexia and bipolar disorder and traits of ADHD, dyspraxia and Auditory Processing Disorder. She is a qualified special needs teacher and an experienced SENCO and advisory teacher. She uses her unique status as an expert by lived experience and a teacher with 23-years of pupil facing work in Wales and England as inspiration. She helps schools improve behaviour, attendance, and attainment amongst pupils of all neurotypes.

Catrina founded Neuroteachers to help educational settings work with their neurodivergent learners to find simple solutions for neuro-inclusive practice. The Neuroteachers team do this through training, mentoring, coaching and culture change in nurseries, schools, and colleges.
