

Staying Safe Online

Emma Durman, Autside

Thursday, 14th of November 2024, 10:00am - 12:00pm

About the session

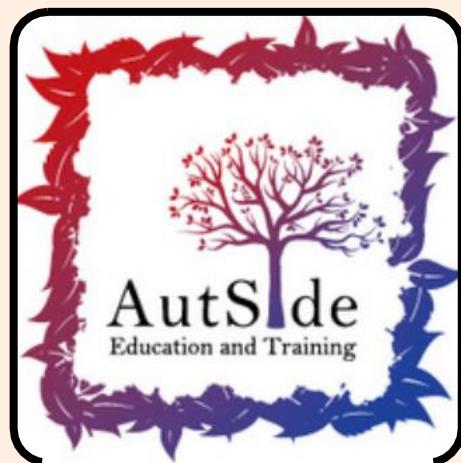

The online world has many benefits for autistic people. However, with these positives come risks. This session will focus on managing those risks and helping parents/carers keep their autistic/neurodivergent young people safe online. The session will include:

- maintaining privacy
- Cyberbullying
- Grooming
- Vulnerability to exploitation
- Setting healthy boundaries

About the presenter

Emma Durman is co-director of Autside Education & Training, a company based in South Wales that specialises in Autism and related conditions. Autside provides a range of training to families and professionals focussed on supporting neurodivergent needs. Emma is a late diagnosed autistic woman who also has ADHD and multiple co-existing conditions. She is also mum to an Autistic teenager who also has ADHD. Emma has a MSc in Autism and related conditions and is co-author of the recently published book 'Supporting Autistic people through pregnancy and childbirth'.
